RAMBLERS 2 – Walk along part of the Regents Canal – Tuesday 22 September 2026 – leader: Helen Salmon

We met up on London Bridge Station and took a train to St Pancras International station on a pleasant autumn day. We started our walk at Granary Square, continued on to the Coal Drops Yard and walked along Bagley Walk with its various shops and eateries until we came to an archway on the left leading to the canal tow path. We continued along past St Pancras Lock into St Pancras Basin and walked under the railway bridge and Camley Road bridge. You have to be aware of joggers and cyclists on the narrow tow path. We continued on and walked under the Royal College road bridge and a bit further on under the Camden Road bridge. On our left there was a terrace with some modern styled properties. After walking under the Kentish Town road bridge we came across Kentish Town Lock (3). The tow path became wider and there was a development of shops, eateries and offices. The tow path became narrow again after Hawley Lock, Regents Canal, Lock 2. We were now walking under the Camden High Street road bridge into Camden Lock where it was very busy with visitors and tourists. We then crossed over the lock to get to the Ice Wharf (Wetherspoons) where we had an enjoyable lunch and natter. Afterwards we made our way onto the very busy Camden High Street until we came to Camden Town underground station on the corner and took the Northern Line to Charing Cross and then made our way home.
